

I'm not robot

Continue

Election watch 2020 usa

CNET provides a fairly comprehensive overview of your options for checking out voting results today, both live on your monitor and via email or SMS. The key among them is Google's attempt to create a live election result card and a continuous AP video stream. Which websites do you check when the results come in? Millions of Americans will go to the polls on November 8 to cast their ballots for the presidential nominee of their choice, and Americans, especially Texans themselves, will be eager to see how the Lone Star State voted. Here's how to see real-time Election Day results in Texas. There are so many ways to keep track of election coverage: Both major and local news outlets will broadcast election results to the end. News outlets are also likely to stream the election results on YouTube, just like the presidential debates, which is great for people who don't have a cable. If you have a media streaming device such as an Apple TV, Google Chromecast, Amazon Fire, or Roku, you can use it to transfer news live streams to your TV. Do you want to track the choice on the big screen, but don't have access to any of these options? Let a friend host an Observer Party throughout the day as the election reaches its most dramatic moments. Many organizations, especially universities and colleges, hold Election Day watch parties, so keep Facebook check for the events that will appear in the coming days. And if you don't want to have a news station in the background all day, local and national news sites are constantly updated throughout the day. YouTube will stream NBC, PBS, MTV, Bloomberg, Telemundo and The Young Turks on Election Day from 7 p.m.m. Est. You can set it up to send push notifications to your phone or computer when something changes. Politico will also update the election results in real time on its website; You have both a Texas-focused results page and a statewide results page that you can consult. Buzzfeed News and Twitter have also teamed up to stream election night debate coverage live on the social network. But there is more on the ballot than the presidential elections; Members of Congress, judges, local representatives and more are also up for re-election. You can find out who is up for election in your Congress or legislative district by entering your address in a Who Represents Me form provided by the Texas legislature. Nearly 1.4 million Texas voters cast their ballots early in Texas' 15 largest counties so far, either in person by mail, according to Texas election documents. But texans can still participate in the early vote. The deadline for filing a postal ballot in Texas is Friday, October 28. We need to make sure that all Texas residents who qualify have the information they need to get their vote, Texas Secretary of State Carlos Cascos told the Star-Telegram. If you are of voting age, now is the time, time, ensure that you too will be able to cast your vote on or until 8 November. Residents and non-residents of Buckeye State will watch the ohio election results being announced on election night. As a crucial swing state and one of the few on hand for Republican nominee Donald Trump, it will be a national story of how Ohioans cast their ballots. Fortunately, there are many real-time options to see Ohio's votes vote. Ohio Governor John Kasich is one of the few prominent Republicans who have refused to endorse Donald Trump. Will he be disappointed if Trump loses Ohio, or will Kasich celebrate? Either way, he will surely root for Sen. Rob Portman, the Republican running against Democrat Ted Strickland. Portman has a big lead in the polls and is the favorite to retain his Senate seat. Many college campuses also offer watch parties for students. The University of Dayton even encourages students to bring homework, which may not be a bad idea given the hours of results reporting. For those who prefer to see Ohio's results at home, election night will dominate most major networks. And, of course, cable news will also provide nonstop updates, including the way the vote comes in Ohio. But for only local, Ohio-only stories, watch live on 10 TV. FREDERIC J. BROWN/AFP/Getty ImagesWould you like to read online? Politico covered it. They will live update their Ohio map, divided into all 88 counties, so that visitors can pierce like a pro in their spare time. Similar maps are also provided by the New York Times and the Wall Street Journal, although they don't see them in the preview yet. And for those who find themselves mobile during the election result, reveal: There is an app for this. CNN Politics provides regular live updates and will keep its users up to date with up-to-date coverage. That definitely includes how Ohio votes because it's the critical swing state it is. Picture: Wikimedia Commons (1) The 2020 Australian Football League (AFL) season will return on June 10 after being stopped due to the coronavirus pandemic. Reduced to 20 rounds this season seems to be one of the hotly contested for years, with several teams turning into legitimate contenders to win everything. And you can still tune in - even if you're not in Australia. The easiest way to keep up with the AFL when you're overseas is with Watch AFL, the official platform to watch every AFL game live and on-demand while you travel outside Australia. You can receive weekly, monthly or annual passes to ensure that you do not receive a minute of the promotion They cost 17, 33 and 165 US dollars. The platform brings you every AFL Premiership and Finals Series game including the Grand Final as well as every AFLW and Community Series game. In addition, you get access to the 24/7 FOX Footy channel with news, analysis and entertainment. With the Watch AFL platform, you can pause and rewind live matches or download games for offline viewing. You can click on your via the Watch AFL website or download the app on your mobile device. To catch the action on the big screen, watch on your TV with Airplay or Chromecast or via the Watch AFL Apple TV app. Get live or on-demand access to every single game of the AFL season. Going to the website on the secure website of Watch AFL Was this content helpful to you? Search Lonely Planet While the presidential election is big news for every voter in the nation, there are a significant number of state-specific contests and problems facing voters in California. When California voters cast their ballots this year, they will face the longest list of statewide proposals in the state since 2000. In addition to voting for president and vice president, voters across California will also elect representatives of the Senate and House of Representatives, and will launch 17 ballots this year when they go to the polls on November 8. Although voting on the ballot may be limited, when it comes to results, voters have more than a few different options to watch election results in real time in California. Proposals 51 to 67 address a handful of pressing local issues, ranging from legalizing marijuana to regulating ammunition sales to raising tobacco taxes to the future of the state's use of the death penalty. While nationwide results will be available online through the California Secretary of State's official website, it's not the only way to stay informed after the polls end in November 8. Here's a selection of how California voters can keep up to date with the results of the state's general election. Stream ItChip Somodevilla/Getty Images News/Getty ImagesYou have many options if you want to see the results online from your computer screen. YouTube will stream NBC, PBS, MTV, Bloomberg, Telemundo and The Young Turks on Election Day from 7 p.m.m. EST. Election Watch PartiesVoters in the Bay Area can go to uptown nightclub in Oakland to report live on television on election results at the best possible location - a bar. In Sacramento, California's capital, the Libertarian Party of Sacramento County hosts an election night vigil with free pizza, a bar and a gelato stand. Further south, the Orange County Democratic Party will host an election observation party in Santa Ana to stay at the top both nationally and nationwide. With Popcorn At An AMC TheaterAMC Theaters has teamed up with CNN to air live election night coverage on the big screen for AMC Stubs members in 50 cinemas across the country, including Angeles, San Diego, and San Francisco, according to Deadline.With POLITICOIf the only screen you plan to plant before next November 8 is a computer screen, POLITICO live election results coverage may be your best bet. Together with As the state's 58 counties vote in the presidential election, the political website will monitor the results of California's Senate and House races during the night. Through Public Radio and TVIn San Diego, the PBS member station KPBS, which is owned by San Diego State University, will keep voters up to date throughout the evening on its website, radio and television stations. About Local News Outlets, The Sacramento Bee is one of a handful of California news outlets that will offer up-to-date live coverage of the results of the state's state general election. Both the San Francisco Chronicle and the Los Angeles Times are expected to deliver results later in the evening, November 8. With more than a dozen measures on the ballot paper, the stakes are high for California voters this year. While the presidential race is a good reason for everyone to adjust to live election coverage when the polls close on November 8, Californians can see that they have 17 additional reasons to stay informed about their local election results. Results.